POLICE SCORED FOR "DOPE" RAID

Have No Right to Enter Apartment Without Warrant, Says Court.

Special to The Washington Herald.
New York, Aug. 4.—It takes more than a bottle-bottle flying through the air like a sparrow to convict a man of felony, according to Magistrate Krotel in the West Side Court today, when he denounced the methods of the police in the drug raid, and advised three detectives of the Vice Squad to read the law. The magistrate then dismissed the complaint against Hal B. Stuyvesant, who described himself as an author. Stuyvesant was charged with having narcotics in his possession when Detectives Hackett and Judge raided his apartment on July 28.

Hackett testified that he had been stationed in the street and that he saw a package containing a whitish substance and a phial labeled "cocaine" hurled from the window of the Stuyvesant apartment.

"That phial looked just like a sparrow when it fell," said Hackett.

Magistrate Krotel interrupted, saying to the detectives:

"On what authority did you enter his room?"

They replied that a stool-pigeon known as Jack had told them Stuyvesant was selling drugs.

"What is the last name of the stool pigeon," asked the court.

"We don't know," replied one of the detectives.

"You have no right to invade this man's apartments without a warrant," Magistrate Krotel then opened a broadside on the methods of the detectives.

"You ought to read the law on felony. I am opposed to officers invading homes without due process of law. There was no evidence that a felony was being committed, except the statement of the stool pigeon. We have some law in this country in spite of the New York police force. A man's home is his castle. I don't believe any policeman is competent to define a felony without advice from the District Attorney. I never heard of such evidence. Bottles flying through the air are described as sparrows. The system pursued is an outrage."

URGES CLEAN-UP OF FISH MARKET

Health Officer, After Personal Inspection, Calls Conditions Unsanitary.

In accordance with his statement to that effect, Dr. W. C. Woodward, the District Health Officer, yesterday made a personal visit to the fish market at the foot of Eleventh street, to verify the complaints of a nuisance made by citizens, as set forth exclusively in yesterday's Washington Herald.

He said he found the management of the market in a sanitary standpoint, and immediately gave instructions for a "clean-up," and the prompt disposal of all refuse to the advantage of citizens, occupants of the fish houses and their customers.

The District will furnish large containers for the accumulation of offal, dead crabs, etc., and the dealers will be required to provide themselves with the regulation garbage cans into which they must deposit all waste and offal, which is to be collected with promptness and dumped as fast as filled.

Foul and filthy barrels have been ordered burned.

Doctor Woodward is hopeful of having a small incinerating plant installed in the proposed new market, with a view of immediately disposing of all such refuse as it is gathered.

The existing conditions justified the complaints there can be no doubt from what Dr. Woodward noted after his investigation.

"As a result of personal investigation of the fish market," said the doctor, "the complaints against it have been well founded. The premises were anything but creditable either to the occupants or to the District, and have instructed the inspectors having the matter in charge to proceed at once to procure all practicable improvements, including improved methods for the disposal of refuse from the fish houses. There are, of course, many things that can not be satisfactorily corrected so long as the present dilapidated structure must be used as a fish market. The present conditions only serve to emphasize the need for hastening the erection of the new market that has already been authorized. When that is done, no doubt ample provision will be made for caring for all kinds of refuse, probably by means of an incinerator on the premises."

SPEAKER CLARK OPENS MARYLAND CAMPAIGN

Sounds Republicans in Keynote Speech at Leonardtown—Occasion Complimentary to Mr. Lewis.

Speaker Champ Clark yesterday opened the Democratic campaign in Maryland with a keynote speech at a State party rally in Leonardtown, in which he sounded the Republicans and predicted a sweeping victory for the Democrats throughout the country in the forthcoming elections.

The occasion was in compliment to Representative David J. Lewis, who is the Democratic candidate for United States Senator in Maryland. Lewis also addressed the gathering and was followed by Jackson H. Ralston, who is the Democratic candidate for Representative from the Fifth Maryland District. The party went to Leonardtown from Washington in an automobile.

"In three years and a half a Democratic Congress has placed more constructive legislation on the statute books, and of the most valuable sort, than had been placed there by our Republican brethren in twenty years," said Speaker Clark.

"The Republicans in years gone by were wont to say that we had no constructive power; that we had lost the art; that we could not do anything. Now, strange to say, they claim that we have done too much. They are hard to please."
